Mrs. King Named Sheriff's Clerk In Coffee County

Mrs. June King is the new Sheriff's Clerk for Coffee County. She works the greater part of each Tuesday and Thursday in Elba, depending on the workload, and the rest of the week in Enterprise.

Mrs. King lives in Pinckard, a distance of some 35 miles from Elba, and drives to her work each day. She and her husband, who is a State Trooper in Dale County, have a farm in Pinckard.

Mrs. King's son, Ned Paschal Harrison, Jr., is married to a girl from Elba, the former Nancy Clark, and they have one child, a daughter, who just turned 3 months last Friday, May 4. Ned and Nancy live in Enterprise, where he works with an oil company.

Mrs. King's job consists mainly of keeping up the docket books - that is, all warrants of arrests, all legal papers, etc. that go through the Sheriff's Office. There are 6 docket books in Elba and 6 in Enterprise. Mrs. King receives all these papers from the Circuit Clerk's Office, where they have been sent by the Judge who issued them. She then enters them in the books, they are served by the Deputy, then brought back for her to record that they have been served. They are then sent back to the Circuit Clerk's Office for file. When Court is held, another paper is served to the persons involved, presenting them with any costs incurred. Mrs. King also handles the filing of papers.

Sales Up Profit Down Reports Dorsey

The Dorsey Corporation (NYSE), manufacturer of glass and plastic containers and cargo trailers, has announced that profits fell despite an increase in shipments.

Net sales for the first three months ended March 31, 1973 rose to $30,112,000 from $27,105,000 in the first quarter of 1972. Net earnings decreased to $616,000, or $3.20 per share on a fully diluted basis, from $1,073,000, or $3.35, a year earlier.

In making the announcement, Herbert L. Oakes, president, noted that soaring prices for materials affected all three of the company's operating divisions. Only in the cargo trailer division, he added, were cost increases more than offset by greater increases in shipments.

In addition, glass container sales were lower than a year ago, reflecting a condition which has prevailed throughout the industry during the early part of 1973. Noting that a price increase for glass containers has been announced for June 1, Mr. Oakes said: "We expect, therefore, that during the second half of the depressed level of the first year the glass container division will show improved profitability over the depressed level of the first quarter." In the plastic container division, he said, selective price increases instituted in March "have begun to lessen the squeeze on the division's profitability."

During the quarter, a leased plastic container plant in Orlando was destroyed by fire, and although major equipment was salvaged and returned to service in another leased facility in the area, the cost of maintaining service to customers had a significant effect on the division's profitability.

The cargo trailer division, Mr. Oakes said, "is enjoying a good year, and indications are that the pace of shipments will remain strong for the balance of 1973."

"As we look ahead," he concluded, "the disappointing results of the first quarter should not, we believe, be considered a reflection of the year as a whole. Although many problems remain with us, particularly the uncertainty of future material and fuel costs and availability, we feel reasonably confident that the balance of the year will show greater profitability than has been shown to date."

Comparative figures are as follows:

BY TOM CASADAY, COUNTY EXTENSION CHAIRMAN

all around COFFEE county

It seems to me that the rural garbage pick-up service is making a difference in the appearance of rural Coffee County. I notice that there aren't nearly as many cans, bottles, pieces of paper and other unsightly things appearing on our highways now as a year ago. In fact, I was with some people from another state just recently. As we drove over the county, they mentioned the fact that the countryside appeared clean.

Of course, we have a long way to go before we can reach the ideal situation of a really beautiful rural Coffee County. Much of the work that is being done is the removal and burial of pesticide and herbicide cans that have been used just recently in planting the peanut crop. Incidentally, I hope that the containers that are provided in the rural areas. Some of them are neat and in excellent shape and others have a lot of garbage just thrown in them.

LEASING PEANUTS

Dean Bond, our peanut specialist at Auburn, talked with me a few days ago about peanuts. He pointed out that the Wiregrass area is leasing their peanuts to others. There is a problem on the amount to charge per acre in renting or leasing peanuts. In order for this to be mutually satisfactory, systems will probably be devised to help determine how much the land should cost each year. For example, peanut land that is producing 2,500 to 3,000 pounds of peanuts per acre would be worth a lot more than those producing 1,500 to 2,000.

Bond suggested that perhaps in future years the rental price would probably be based on the yields during the previous three to five years. I mention this to emphasize that the Wiregrass needs to do everything within its power to make a maximum yield of peanuts per acre. It will be beneficial to him now and also in the future. In the event he decides to rent or lease his peanut acreage.

SPURVEED CONTROL

I have had several calls this week asking for ways to control spurweed. Spurweed is a small plant and does not grow much over two to three inches tall and develops sticky spurs at this time of the year. They will stick you a little even when they are green, but when they dry they become much more painful.

Spurweed is a winter annual weed. It germinates in the fall and winter. At this time of the year, they form seedheads. These seedheads are spurs. Of weed very undesirable. To control we recommend that one use the pre-emergent herbicides such as granular Balan be used in the fall. Balan is a 2, 4-D give fair control of the weed during the spring of the year. However, these treatments should be made when the weeds are actively growing and before the spurs mature. In most cases, it is too late for this treatment. I would certainly recommend that pre-emergence type materials like Balan be used during the fall of the year.

Viet Nam Policy

Reid Hoffman, a representative of the Diamond Shamrock Company and former county agent in North Carolina, visits us occasionally. Heffer served for over two years in Viet Nam in the capacity similar to the county agent here in the Wiregrass. He made some interesting observations on some things that he thought would help bring peace and tranquility to Viet Nam.

Heffer said that one problem in Viet Nam is that only a very few people own land. Most of it is owned by landlords. The peasant is only given enough to feed himself and his family. For example, he said that it might take 2,500 to 3,000 pounds of peanuts per acre would be worth a lot more than those producing 1,500 to 2,000.

Spurweed is a small plant and does not grow much over two to three inches tall and develops sticky spurs at this time of the year. They will stick you a little even when they are green, but when they dry they become much more painful.

Spurweed is a winter annual weed. It germinates in the fall and winter. At this time of the year, they form seedheads. These seedheads are spurs. Of weed very undesirable. To control we recommend that one use the pre-emergent herbicides such as granular Balan be used in the fall. Balan is a 2, 4-D give fair control of the weed during the spring of the year. However, these treatments should be made when the weeds are actively growing and before the spurs mature. In most cases, it is too late for this treatment. I would certainly recommend that pre-emergence type materials like Balan be used during the fall of the year.

Viet Nam Policy

Reid Hoffman, a representative of the Diamond Shamrock Company and former county agent in North Carolina, visits us occasionally. Heffer served for over two years in Viet Nam in the capacity similar to the county agent here in the Wiregrass. He made some interesting observations on some things that he thought would help bring peace and tranquility to Viet Nam.

4-H EVENTS

Two things happened the past week that raised my spirits and gave me renewed motivation. One was the 4-H Club Rally held last Friday at Rates Memorial Stadium. About 1,300 young people and adults met for a day of field events, special awards and entertainment. It was a very good day for the young people of this county. I hope we can make this bigger and better every year and give our young people the kind of opportunities they need to develop the talents they have.

The second thing that impressed me was the volunteer 4-H leaders' recognition dinner Tuesday night. About 140 people gathered at the Junior College for this event. Seventy of them were volunteer 4-H Club leaders.

District Extension Chairman J.C. Bullington and State 4-H Club Leader Cecil Mayhew pointed out that Coffee County has the largest group of volunteer leaders of any county in the state. I am convinced that because of the dedication of these leaders, this county in the year ahead is going to move forward. Our young people are going to get many opportunities that they would not ordinarily have.

4-H Leaders Recognized At Special Dinner

The largest group of volunteer 4-H leaders ever assembled anywhere in Alabama was the way District Extension Chairman J.C. Bullington described the Coffee County 4-H Club leaders. Dr. Cecil Mayhew, State 4-H Club Leader, said, "Coffee County has served as a pilot county in the state and has taken a giant leap in the 4-H leader oriented program."

One hundred fifty of Coffee County's volunteer 4-H leaders including school leaders and officials attended a special recognition dinner at the Enterprise State Junior College in the Student Activities Building on Tuesday night, May 1. Leaders were honored and presented gifts for serving as volunteers during the school year.

FOOD PRICES AND THE FARMER

High food prices and the price of meat are common topics found in today's headlines or overheard in discussions among housewives and others. While it is true that farm prices are higher today than ever before, the farmer is only now beginning to receive the prices he should. In fact, in some cases, he is still below par for the prices he receives. A recent USDA publication entitled "What's Happened To Food Prices," contains 16 pages of facts, concerning farm prices today. The following are just some of the more important items.

1. Average hourly wages in industry have increased from $1.52 per hour in 1952 to $3.65 in 1972. If food prices had increased this much (2.41 times the 1952 level), round steak would cost $2.67 per pound instead of $1.68 per pound, and chicken would cost $1.46 per pound instead of 47¢ per pound.

2. In 1952, 23.05¢ of a person's income was spent for food; now, only 15.75¢ of a person's income is spent on food.

3. The cost of food rose 71 percent for the past 20 years, while the cost of the raw products rose only 47 percent. This is due to more expensive foods, such as higher priced cuts of meat and more convenience products, which cost more to produce.

The list of facts could go on and on. Why all the fuss about food prices? We all realize this fact, but do we realize that through the years, wages for major groups of industrial workers have advanced more rapidly than the price of food?

For starters, there was quite a delay here in Elba, due to that unfortunate bus wreck. We waited for another bus to arrive, and in the meantime everyone got everyone else's way, stumbling over suitcases and horn cases. Besides that, it was raining, cold, and miserable. But, the rain dampened our bodies, not our spirits. We finally left in our own spectacular manner—waving to the police escort, sirens blaring, "circling the square."

We arrived the Dunes in Pensacola without incident (what could happen?). We were too late for the first parade, so we went to the first place in both of those. At Pensacola, awards were given in order of first, second, and third place by other categories awarded.

So when it was announced that the Elba drum majors had placed first in the contest, the band went wild, with a good-sized helping of screaming, hugging and crying. After that, when it was announced that the Elba band was second in overall competition out of a field of the best "dodgem" high school bands I've ever seen, we went insane again. We had a live rock band called Sirkus, and a pretty good time was had by all. Some very close weekend friendships were made that night. Moonlight and murmuring ways seemed to do things. Afterwards, we returned to the hotel, and a mob of kids went swimming, classes and all. Then, with a good bit of shivering, everyone went to their rooms and went to sleep.

Friday morning we got up, a little less than bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. After breakfast, we boarded the buses and went to Tate High School for our first practice. Under the critical eye of several students, we went through our slow a couple of times on an asphalt practice field. We were a little less than outstanding. Afterwards, we ate lunch at a Morrison's and had a little free time to go shopping. Then, back to the buses and another short, sloppy practice at Escambia High School. It was another asphalt practice field, murder on the feet.

We returned to the Dunes for some much-needed rest, which very few people took advantage of. After that, we suited up, ate supper at the hotel restaurant and went to our first parade. I couldn't get over how much everything reminded me of Marydell. There was a spontaneous, thrilling pulse of excitement everywhere. Nobody seemed to have a care in the world. The whole parade was a blur of light, sound, and color.

We left the parade to go directly to the marching contest. We were the third band to go on, and were tensed up as only a band could be.

After lining up and hearing the preliminary announcements, our drum majors gave us the go-word. We were the third band to go on, and were tensed up as only a band could be.

What Really Happened In Pensacola?

Well, in case you've been in Elba for the last couple of weeks, and have just come home, the Elba High Marching Tigers recently attended the Fiesta of Five Flags in Pensacola. The festival included four parades, a marching contest, and a lot of other little fun things to thrill the kid in all of us. Here is what happened, or at least that which can be reported in a family newspaper.

For starters, there was quite a delay here in Elba, due to that unfortunate bus wreck. We waited for another bus to arrive, and in the meantime everyone got everyone else's way, stumbling over suitcases and horn cases. Besides that, it was raining, cold, and miserable. But, the rain dampened our bodies, not our spirits. We finally left in our own spectacular manner—waving to the police escort, sirens blaring, "circling the square."

Let A Smile Be Your Umbrella

Do you wear your feelings on your shoulder as a chip that you can take down? Do you consider everything you say as applying to you and taking everything personally and as a put-down on yourself? If you do, you are in for a very unhappy future for an over-sensitive person will find many chances for taking offense when they could just as easily look at things in another way and be a much happier person. To make yourself truly miserable you have only to seek criticism and use it as a put-down on yourself. One of the most disabling things about being an over-sensitive person is that people soon cease to want to be associated with you. They grow to become so uncomfortable in your presence and so fearful of hurting your feelings that they choose other company.

A few weeks ago our editorial discussed the cruelty of teasing, but there is another side to the coin and it is being able to take larnies, occasional teasing because this is just as necessary as knowing when not to be cruel. An important yardstick in measuring good mental health and emotional maturity is a person's reaction to others' remarks.

So turn that frown upside-down and into a smile and take things that people say as you would want them if you were saying them, for you wouldn't deliberately hurt someone, would you?

A Chip On His Shoulder

He always has something to grumble about. Has the man with a chip on his shoulder? The world to the dogs is going, no doubt. To the man with a chip on his shoulder. The clouds are too dark, the sun is too bright. No matter what happens, it is never right. When peace is prevailing, he is spoiling to fight. The man with a chip on his shoulder.

Lamar Boswell Narrowly Escapes Death Here Wednesday

An Elba man, Lamar Boswell, narrowly escaped death Wednesday (May 9), shortly after 12 o'clock noon when he swerved to avoid a sure collision with a Seaboard Coastline freight train making its daily trip to Elba.

Boswell was driving into Elba on a short stretch of highway known as "The Old Samson Road" when he caught sight of the train coming out of a deep-cut roadbed. He crossed the tracks just ahead of the engine as it slowed, entering the Elba City Limits, however, he dropped off a 20-foot embankment, wrecking his restored 1952 Chevrolet and throwing the lone occupant out of the automobile.

A unit of the Elba Rescue Squad rushed the victim to the Elba General Hospital where he was reported to be in good condition with cuts and bruises around the head and some injuries to his left shoulder.

Road Work Underway Here

This picture shows more road work progressing in Elba. The state highway department is in the process of widening the Troy Highway, making it four lanes on past the city limits. This work and the four laning of Highway 84 West was first announced last year by Representative Douglas Easters.

Nursing Home Week Underway

"This week, throughout the state, Nursing Home Week is being observed with the motto 'We care', says Mrs. Lorne Bryan, of the Elba Nursing Home.

"The opportunity doesn't arise too often for us to recognize our aged citizens," says Mrs. Bryan, "and we at Elba Nursing Home are proud to be able to have a part in honoring the Senior residents who live in our home."

Next Sunday, May 20, 1973, at 2:30 p.m. will be visitation time at the Elba Nursing Home, to commemorate the special week. Mrs. Bryan urges everyone who has a loved one or friend in the Home to visit them at that time.

"For those who don't have anyone in the Home, we extend an invitation to you also to come by and wish the residents well and enjoy refreshments with them. Let's make this day a family day for our Senior citizens at Elba Nursing Home," says Mrs. Bryan.

A bingo party, one of the weekly activities of the nursing home for senior citizens.

Mrs. King Named Sheriff's Clerk In Coffee County

Mrs. June King is the new Sheriff's Clerk for Coffee County. She works the greater part of each Tuesday and Thursday in Elba, depending on the workload, and the rest of the week in Enterprise.

Mrs. King lives in Pinckard, a distance of some 35 miles from Elba, and drives to her work each day. She and her husband, who is a State Trooper in Dale County, have a farm in Pinckard.

Mrs. King's son, Ned Paschal Harrison, Jr., is married to a girl from Elba, the former Nancy Clark, and they have one child, a daughter, who just turned 3 months last Friday, May 4. Ned and Nancy live in Enterprise, where he works with an oil company.

Mrs. King's job consists mainly of keeping up the docket books - that is, all warrants of arrests, all legal papers, etc., that go through the Sheriff's Office. There are docket books in Elba and 6 in Enterprise.

Mrs. King receives all these papers from the Circuit Clerk's Office where they have been sent by the Judge who issued the books. They are served by the Deputy, then brought back for her to record that they have been served. They are then sent back to the Circuit Clerk's Office for file. When Court is held, another paper is served to the persons involved, presenting them with any costs incurred. Mrs. King also handles these papers.

Mrs. King previously worked at the Police Station in Enterprise.

Sales Up Profit Down Reports Dorsey

The Dorsey Corporation (NYSE), manufacturer of glass and plastic containers and cartons, has announced that profits despite an increase in shipments.

Net sales for the first three months ended March 31, 1973 rose to $30,112,000 from $27,105,000 in the first quarter of 1972. Net earnings decreased to $616,000, or $2.0 per share on a fully diluted basis, from $1,073,000, or $3.35, a year earlier.

In making the announcement, Herbert L. Oakes, president, noted that soaring prices for materials affected all three of the company's operating divisions. Only in the cargo trailer division, he added, were cost increases more than offset by greater increases in shipments.

In addition, glass container sales were lower than a year ago, reflecting a condition which has prevailed throughout the industry during the early part of 1973.

Noting that a price increase for glass containers has been announced for June 1, Mr. Oakes said, "We expect, therefore, that during the second half of the year the glass container division will show improved profitability over the depressed level of the first quarter."

In the plastic container division, he said, selective price increases instituted in March "have begun to lessen the squeeze on the division's profitability."

During the quarter, a leased plastic container plant in Orlando was destroyed by fire, and although major equipment was salvaged and returned to service in another leased facility in the area, the cost of maintaining service to customers had a significant effect on the division's profitability.

The cargo trailer division, Mr. Oakes said, "is enjoying a good year, and indications are that the pace of shipments will remain strong for the balance of 1973."

As we look ahead, "he concluded, "the disappointing results of the first quarter should not, we believe, be considered a reflection of the year as a whole. Although many problems remain with us, particularly the uncertainty of future material and fuel costs and availability, we feel reasonably confident that the balance of the year will show greater profitability than has been shown to date."

Comparative figures are as follows:

For The Three Months Ended March 31

Net Sales $30,112,000-1973

1972 Wage Controls Slowed Pay Raises

With wage controls in effect during 1972, first year pay increases in negotiated union contracts fell significantly below 1970 levels.

The 1972 survey indicates that the all-industries median wage gain was 25.5 cents per hour for the first year of the contract. The comparable 1971 median was 39.8 cents per hour. The most pronounced decrease was in the construction industry increases where the 1971 median was 69.1 cents per hour and the 1972 median increase was 38.3 cents per hour.

A Saturday afternoon shooting incident in Mulberry Heights put one man in an Enterprise hospital and another in the Coffee County jail charged with assault to murder.

Arrested by Grantham and Elba policeman Pete Daugherty was Joe Mack Thom, age 20. No bond had been set for Tyson at press time. Law officers report several outstanding warrants for Tyson in Covington County where he is wanted in connection with some robberies.

KEY EDWIN R. SELLS

Many of our church members are observing Christian Home Week and National Family Week. This week always begins with Sunday and ends with Sunday with Mother's Day. During the week, we as families are asked to be conscious of our responsibility to God and to one another.

We as Christians have a strong heritage toward the family. Our Jewish ancestors thousands of years ago were quite apt at family living and have passed this important institution to us today. The apostle Paul, speaking to young Timothy said, "I thank God who has made me a minister of Jesus Christ, to remembrance of the faithful that is in thee, which dwells in thee, thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice, and I am persuaded that in thee also." (II Tim. 3:15)

Letter To The Editor

On Wednesday, April 19, 1973, struck Elba Airplane. Before it was over 19 airplanes were left in the air. The plane of the last, God is not merely a God for the aged, the lonely and the tired. Nor is faith an early enthusiasm in the warm blood of youth that disappears with a sober knowledge of the realities of life. "Religion," wrote James Moffatt, "is a continuous experience that opens up as life advances. God is our dwelling place in all generations. A genuine faith found in grandparents, parents and children is the deepest and the most wonderful bond that can hold their hearts together."

This kind of faith does not just happen. As parents we have the obligation to our children to love them with an unchanging love that can never be gained by merit nor lost by failure. A child's life outside the home, he doesn't always know where he stands, in his school work, with his playmates, in his losses and gains in adventure. But within the home, every child ought to know where he stands and it should be on the foundation of love. It isn't fair for a child to have to wonder what he has to do to win his parents' love -- he ought to have it anyway. A parent's love for his child should not be based on his report card, his friendships, his marriage, or his success. Your love for the child should be there -- period!

Perhaps the second obligation from a parent to a child should be a sharing of the parent's faith with his child. In the long run the test of a person's life is a test of his soul, and to amount of material achievement, no high protecting walls can shield him from the day when the trumpet sounds for him, and he must go out to encounter the world not with what he has -- but with what he is. And when you come down to it, what a person is, is what he deeply believes. You

There have been several almost gory happenings at our house lately -- and I can't stand gory things. Your love for the child should be there -- period!

So now he had to do it, and reluctant he was too, for he is fond of anything that belongs to the animal family.

But we got through the awkward, messy job of killing, plucking and cleaning the chickens -- and that wasn't easy, for it's been a long time since I watched Grandma do it.

Then my daughter has been collecting insects for science. She put in a 3-legged cricket that I supposedly had zinked with the broom -- into a jar with some other insects.

A few hours later, as she peeked into the jar -- there was one very live cricket -- and three less insects.

My husband had a delicacy for breakfast recently -- We have these big bullfrogs in back of the house which give out with a "ca-rump," "ca-rump," "ca-rump" chorus every night.

These froggies have fat legs -- so my husband and son went frog hunting one night -- and the next day I opened the refrigerator door -- my eyes fell on this limp piece of what we the froggies.

I didn't have time to stand there trying to figure out what it was, so I left the question mark there in my mind. But it was erased shortly by another question -- "What was the froggie?"

Yes, I had seen the frog leg. I was instructed to cook that thing in butter -- like the French do, but I didn't -- I just popped it into the bacon grease.

Well, that leg looked for all the world like it was going to hop out of the frying pan. But, it only stretched and rolled, and finally began to brown a little. Not knowing if it had reached the "done" stage or not, I took it up, and turned it around. It was still brown, and I took it while the rest of us frowned and grimaced and "yuked."

He did persuade us to taste it, though, and I wish I hadn't. It was cottony, stringy and -- "froggy." What it was bothered me more than how it tasted.

The longer I chewed, the bigger got it, as the old saying goes, and needless to say, I just couldn't swallow it.

But there are several more pairs of the "froggies" in the freezer -- and I guess I'll do them up right in the butter next time.

I think it would be nice if we had a froggie in the freezer. I had one in the freezer, and I guess I'll do them up right in the butter next time.

Senator Sparkman Answers Questions

DEAR SENATOR SPARKMAN: I can only hope that you are supporting your fellow Senators and Congressmen who are outraged over this Administration's attempt to make mockery of Congress by claiming "executive privilege" concerning the investigation into the Watergate events. Those persons responsible, whoever they may be, should be held to account for their actions to the full extent of the law. R. O. Fautala

SPARKMAN: As you may know, the Administration has announced a number of resignations of many staff leaders because of their involvement in the Watergate case. I am not sure that action has been initiated to remove these wrongdoers from their White House positions. However, I do not think that the investigation should be ended until we arrive at the complete truth. I also feel strongly that executive privilege should not be used in an attempt to prevent an orderly investigation into this disturbing matter and that an independent investigation should be conducted and supported by the Administration.

As strategic and vital to our nation's economic well-being and our military security, the Joint Committee on Defense Production, of which I am Chairman, is now making a careful examination of the situation in an attempt to make sure that no military or defense activity is being interfered with by the current economic conditions.

Poor housing, loneliness or boredom, inability to prepare meals, and difficulty in managing money or finding medical care are among other situations with which the county staff can help.

"If an older couple is living in an unsafe home, perhaps they can qualify for a government housing project," says Mrs. McMinn. "or they may simply need to know how to get a low-interest loan to have the porch repaired and the roof replaced."

Since there is so much to be done, pensions and security of life are always on the lookout for volunteers and agencies of service. If the county has no "meals on wheels" program for the aged, a worker might locate a neighborhood to assist a disabled person with food preparation.

can't control the circumstances. But as a parent you can give your child a natural and genuine faith that will make him strong and steadfast in spirit.

And I would like to say a further word about the obligations of children to their parents, which are summed up in the commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother." Children should honor their parents in their personal habits, duties and economics. They should assuredly honor their parents by respecting them and considering their judgment with care. You may not always agree with them, but listen quietly and reason calmly -- and postpone for a reasonable time a decision that you may regret the rest of your life.

There are obviously many things about family life that I have left out because of space, but I hardly think any of us can leave out love and faith and respect. May God bless your family this week and may we all have the same love and faith in our families.

On Wednesday, April 19, 1973, struck Elba Airplane. Before it was over 19 airplanes were left in the air. The plane of the last, God is not merely a God for the aged, the lonely and the tired. Nor is faith an early enthusiasm in the warm blood of youth that disappears with a sober knowledge of the realities of life. "Religion," wrote James Moffatt, "is a continuous experience that opens up as life advances. God is our dwelling place in all generations. A genuine faith found in grandparents, parents and children is the deepest and the most wonderful bond that can hold their hearts together."

This kind of faith does not just happen. As parents we have the obligation to our children to love them with an unchanging love that can never be gained by merit nor lost by failure. A child's life outside the home, he doesn't always know where he stands, in his school work, with his playmates, in his losses and gains in adventure. But within the home, every child ought to know where he stands and it should be on the foundation of love. It isn't fair for a child to have to wonder what he has to do to win his parents' love -- he ought to have it anyway. A parent's love for his child should not be based on his report card, his friendships, his marriage, or his success. Your love for the child should be there -- period!

Perhaps the second obligation from a parent to a child should be a sharing of the parent's faith with his child. In the long run the test of a person's life is a test of his soul, and to amount of material achievement, no high protecting walls can shield him from the day when the trumpet sounds for him, and he must go out to encounter the world not with what he has -- but with what he is. And when you come down to it, what a person is, is what he deeply believes. You

There have been several almost gory happenings at our house lately -- and I can't stand gory things. Your love for the child should be there -- period!

Every Citizen Loses Because Of Watergate Misdeeds

Senator Jim Allen

The President's Watergate speech left many questions unanswered but I feel sure that the truth of the whole sordid mess will come out in time and that those who are guilty will be punished. It has been my position all along that the truth must come out and let the chips fall where they will.

Until there is hard evidence to the contrary, I will not believe that President Nixon had any prior personal knowledge of this disgraceful series of events. In my judgment, Mr. Nixon is too anxious that he be accorded a high place in history to have allowed such a thing as the Watergate to overshadow his important achievements in both foreign and domestic affairs.

But more important than any individual's reputation or place in history is the disastrous effect on our political system resulting from such apparent arrogation of power and control. It has damaged his position as a world leader seeking to bring an era of peace to a troubled world.

Who are the losers? Not only the President; not only our institutions of government; but every single citizen in the country.

Surely the President's task of ruling righteously men for his staff could not be as hard as the task of Diogenes with his lantern looking for an honest man, or the task assigned to Abraham in days of old in seeking to find righteous men in Sodom to save it from destruction.

CLEAN-UP
It seems to me that the rural garbage pick-up service is making a difference in the appearance of rural Coffee County. I notice that there aren't nearly as many cans, bottles, pieces of paper and other unsightly things appearing on our highways now as a year ago. In fact, I was with some people from another state just recently. As we drove over the county, they mentioned the fact that the countryside appeared clean.

Of course, we have a long way to go before we can reach the ideal situation of a really beautiful rural Coffee County. Much more needs to be done. One thing that needs to be done from a standpoint of both beauty and safety is the removal and burial of pesticide and herbicide cans that have been used just recently in planting the peanut crop. I hope that everyone will be more careful in placing their garbage in the containers that are provided in the rural areas. Some of them are not and in excellent shape and others have a lot of garbage just thrown at them.

EASING PEANUTS
Dean Bond, our peanut specialist at Auburn, talked with me a few days ago about peanuts. He pointed out that a lot of growers in Coffee County and the Wiregrass are leaving their peanuts to others. There is a problem on the amount to charge per acre in renting or leasing peanuts. In order for this to be mutually satisfactory, a system will probably be devised to help determine how much the land should cost each year. For example, peanut land that is producing 2,500 to 3,000 pounds of peanuts per acre would be worth a lot more than those producing 1,500 to 2,000.

Dean suggested that perhaps future years the rental rates would probably be based on yields during the previous three to five years. I mention this to emphasize that every grower needs to do everything within his power to make a maximum yield of peanuts per acre. It will be beneficial to him now and also in the future in the event he decides to rent or lease his peanut acreage.

SPURWEED CONTROL
I have had several calls this week asking for ways to control spurweed. Spurweed is a small plant and does not grow much

4-H EVENTS

Two things happened the past week that raised my spirits and gave me renewed motivation. One was the 4-H Club Rally held last Friday at Bates Memorial Stadium. About 1,300 young people and adults met for a day of field events, special awards and entertainment. It was a very good day for the young people of this county. I hope we can make this bigger and better every year and give our young people the kind of opportunities they need to develop the talents they have.

The second thing that impressed me was the volunteer 4-H leaders' recognition dinner Tuesday night. About 140 people gathered at the Junior College for this event. Seventy of them were volunteer 4-H Club leaders.

District Extension Chairman J.C. Bullington and State 4-H Club Leader Cecil Mayfield pointed out that Coffee County has the largest group of volunteer 4-H leaders of any county in the state. I am convinced that because of the dedication of these leaders, this county in the years ahead is going to move forward and our young people are going to get many opportunities that they would not ordinarily have.

FFA-FHA Parents Honored At Banquet

The Kinston Chapters of FFA & FHA jointly honored their parents at a Parent's Banquet, Friday, April 27th. The Rev. Albert Glass of Kinston gave the invocation. Acting as Master in the capacity similar to the county agent here in the Wiregrass, Jimmy Taylor welcomed the guests. Special speakers were Mr. Steve Fowler, State FFA President, of Wickburg High School, and Miss Jane Donaldson, FFA President of Opp High School. Steve commended during his talk that there were more parents attending this than at any other he had attended.

A group of FFA & FHA members supplied the entertainment for the group as they enjoyed an earth roast meal. Reports of both groups activities of the year were heard. Mr. Fred Wood, FFA Sponsor and Mrs. Elizabeth Bowdin, FFA Sponsor, Melanie Glass, and Jimmy Taylor were recognized as FFA Sweetheart and FFA Boy.

FFA received 3 new Honorary Members, Mr. Roland Whigham, Mr. Cecil Patterson, and Mr. Charles Donaldson. The FFA received their 1st Honorary Member, Mrs. Myrtle Saunders. These Honorary members were recognized for their contributions to the respective clubs.

The Heffners live in Dothan, and it occurred to me that they could give a very interesting program on agriculture and his work with Vietnamese farmers.

4-H Leaders Recognized At Special Dinner

"The largest group of volunteer 4-H leaders ever assembled anywhere in Alabama" was the way District Extension Chairman J.C. Bullington described the Coffee County 4-H Club leaders. Dr. Cecil Mayfield, State 4-H Club Leader, said, "Coffee County has served as a pilot county in the state and has taken a giant leap in the 4-H leader oriented program."

One hundred fifty of Coffee County's volunteer 4-H leaders including school leaders and officials attended a special recognition dinner at the Enterprise State Junior College in the Student Activities Building on Tuesday night, May 1. Leaders were honored and presented gifts for serving as volunteer leaders during the school year.

Dr. Harold Grant, who is a faculty member at Auburn, spoke on the importance of giving good leadership to youth programs. Elba Betty Young, Nickie Sexton, Dixie Deal, Katharine Johnson, Faye Johnson, Nancy

FOOD PRICES AND THE FARMER
High food prices and the price of meat are common topics found in today's headlines or overheard in discussions among housewives, and others. While it is true that farm prices are higher today than ever before, the farmer is only now beginning to receive the prices he should. In fact, in some cases, he is still below par on the prices he receives. A recent USDA publication entitled "What's Happened To Food Prices," contains 16 pages of facts, concerning farm prices today. The following are just some of the more important items.

1. Average hourly wages in industry have increased from $1.32 per hour in 1952 to $3.65 in 1972. If food prices had increased this much (2.4 times the 1952 level), round steak would cost $2.67 per pound instead of $1.68 per pound; and chicken would cost $1.46 per pound instead of 47¢ per pound. 2. In 1952, 23.0% of a person's income was spent for food; now, only 15.7% of a person's income is spent on food. 3. The cost of food rose 71 percent for the past 20 years, while the cost of the raw products rose only 47 percent. This is due to more expensive foods, such as higher priced cuts of meat and more convenience products, which cost more to produce.

The list of facts could go on and on. Why all the fuss about food prices? We all realize this fact, but do we realize that through the years, wages for major groups of industrial workers have advanced more rapidly than the price of food?

Changes in farm prices show up in the supermarket, but not so suddenly nor always in the same direction. Farm prices dropped 4.8 percent in 1967, though our food prices increased 1 percent. In 1971, while farm prices were up 1.8 percent, your food prices increased 3.0 percent. Farm prices fluctuate widely, due to forces largely beyond the individual farmer's control - weather, yields, pests, food prices, feed supplies, farmers' prices. When the farmer's prices go up, they usually come down later. The prices of most everything else tend to stay up. Despite the rise in prices, food takes a smaller share of the average income.

What Really Happened In Pensacola?

Well, in case you've been in China for the last couple of weeks and have just come home, the High Marching Tigers recently attended the Fiesta of Five Flags in Pensacola. The festival included four parades, a marching contest, and a lot of other little fun things to thrill the kid in all of us. Here's what happened, or at least that we can be reported in a family newspaper.

For starters, there was quite a delay here in Elba, due to that unfortunate bus wreck. We waited for another bus to arrive, and in the meantime everyone got everyone else's way, stumbling over suitcases and horn cases. Besides that, it was raining, cold, and miserable. But, the rain dampened our bodies, not our spirits. We finally left in our usual spectacular manner - with a police escort, sirens blaring, circling the square.

We arrived at the Dunes in Pensacola without incident (what could happen?) We were too late for the first parade, so we had extra time to goof around at the hotel. We messed around for a while, then ate at a great little joint up the road. While we were paid a visit by five trucks on a motorcycle, one a spitting image of Yul Brynner, another strongly resembling a werewolf. That provided the evening's excitement.

In addition, the Pensacola bands threw the other bands a beach party. We had a live rock band called Sirrus, and a pretty good time was had by all. Some of the best of the best "dagum" high school bands I've ever seen, we went insane again, were made that night. Moonlight and murmuring was seemed to go to things. Afterwards, we returned to the hotel, and a mob of kids went swimming, clothes and all. Then, with a good bit of shivering, everyone went to their rooms and went to sleep.

Friday morning we got up a little less than bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. After breakfast, we boarded the buses and went to Tate High School for our first parade. Under the critical eye of several students, we went through our show a couple of times on an asphalt practice field. We were a little less than outstanding. Afterwards, we ate lunch at a Morrison's and had a little free time to go shopping. Then, back to the buses and another short, sloppy practice at Escambia High School. It was another asphalt practice field, murder on the feet.

We returned to the Dunes for some much-needed rest, which very few people took advantage of. After that, we suited up, ate supper at the hotel restaurant, and went to our first parade. I couldn't get over how much everything reminded me of Mardi Gras. There was a spontaneous, throbbing pulse of excitement everywhere. Nobody could get over how much everything reminded me of Mardi Gras. There was a spontaneous, throbbing pulse of excitement everywhere. Nobody could get over how much everything reminded me of Mardi Gras.

We left the parade to go directly to the marching contest. We were the third band to go on, and were tensed up as only a band could be. After lining up and hearing the preliminary announcements, our drum majors gave us the go-ahead. Now, maybe I'm over-stating a point here, but I'm trying to be honest. We may not have ever done a better single show. It was as close to perfection as we could get it. Incredible! A standing ovation. And as we were coming off the field, a bright orange sign up in the stands announced, "We love you, Marching Tigers!" Great! We love you, too! Finally, while fling back up into the stands, I caught a glimpse of Mr. Maddox. Our great director was waving away a tear.

Sincerely, every band we saw was great. We never had any stiffer competition in any single contest. Finally, the scores were being announced. The president of the Fiesta made a nasty crack to one of the judges, saying, "Bear Bryant should've known better than trying to fool with you Texas people!" That guy cut the state of Alabama. The band from Longview, Texas, Pine Tree High School, really raked up in those two parades. They landed first place in both of those. At Pensacola, awards were given in order of first, second, and third, with other categories awarded.

So, when it was announced that the Elba drum majors had placed first in the contest, the band went wild, with a good-sized helping of screaming, hugging and crying. After that, when it was announced that the Elba band was second in overall competition, out of a field of the best "dagum" high school bands I've ever seen, we went insane again, were made that night. Moonlight and murmuring was seemed to go to things. Afterwards, we returned to the hotel, and a mob of kids went swimming, clothes and all. He said the change will be gradual with target date of 1973 to implement paying marking requirements - 1975 - for signs and 1977 for signals. He also explained the significance of colors and shapes of the new designs.

This week in local sports finds our city without three coaches who led our high school football, basketball, and basketball teams to winning seasons this past year. Randy Griffin, Paul Sawyer, and Paul Bass all have accepted jobs at other schools for the coming school year.

Griffin, who in his first year as head football coach at Elba led the team to a 9-1 season and the South Alabama Conference championship, will return home to Opp. He was probably the best all-around athlete to play at Opp during his high school days, and starts a rebuilding in his home town that will no doubt turn out some more good teams.

Paul Sawyer, who coached the most exciting group of basketball players ever at Elba High to a 15 to 8 record during the past year, as he has become head basketball coach at T. R. Miller in Brewton next season.

Our city has been blessed with talent in the coaching profession the past few years, as these three will knock some kind of dent in our school sports program. Yet high school coaches advance in their field just as other professionals do, and join with the rest of our community in wishing them the best of luck in new endeavors.

Now for another view at what looks like an impossible situation. Our school officials are faced with the task of finding replacements for these capable men. Experts who are yet young and think "modern", (if I might use a worn phrase) are very hard to find. But let's take a look at the record of the people who are responsible for hiring these experts. It shows some good results also. Elba hasn't had a losing season in the three "major" sports in quite a while, which is quite an accomplishment for a community the size of ours.

The attitude that we local people should take should not be one of complaining and moaning of losing our head coach, as capable as they are. It should be one to start a rebuilding program of our own, with the same support from outside the system that was of help before.

If we stop and think about it, there are still good athletes at Elba High School just as in the past, and we have more winning seasons to look forward to.

Now before this column begins to sound like an editorial, let's move on to another subject, namely professional golf and Bruce Crampton. The lanky veteran from Sydney, Australia is headed toward the top in his field. Last week's victory in the Houston Champions tournament put him over $15,000 on the official money-winning list for 1973. He moved ahead of Billy Casper on the career earnings list, and looks to be the next million dollar winner. Bruce may not possess the most attractive personality in the business, but no one can argue with the way he goes about his business. After all, name one other pro golfer who refers to his bag as a "box of toys".
